Democratic Jubilee.

A GREAT OUTPOURING OF THE VICTORS.

THE TOWN ABLAZE WITH FIREWORKS.

The Democratic parade which was announced for last Friday, was postponed on account of the storm, until Monday night. At that time it was not much better, for it snowed during the day, and the streets were muddy, and the weather was cold and damp, but this did not deter the enthusiastic Democrats from celebrating their victory. The town was crowded early in the evening, people coming in from every direction. The B. & S. brought down a special train of eight cars, all filled, from Jamison City, Benton, Central, and all along the line, and many drove in from the country, Berwick, Lightstreet, Espy, Buckhorn, Catawissa, all furnished a goodly number both of paraders and spectators. Decorations were profuse along the line of march, many residences being resplendent with lanterns and flags. Main street was fairly ablaze. Nearly every business house was illuminated, and as the procession passed, red and green fires were burned, rockets and Roman candles were shot off, and the street was one lurid glare from end to end. Bon-fires were kept going in front of I. Maier's clothing store, and Fleckenstine's Hotel. It would require too much space to name all those who illuminated. It would include every democratic house along the line, and some republicans. The court house made a fine showing, and Prothonotary Quick filled the air with rockets, candles and other displays from the balcony.

The parade formed on Market street below Fifth, in the following order: Chief Marshals, Dr. T. C. Harter, C. S. Furman; Assistants, Charles B. Chrisman, William Housel, J. H. Mercer, W. B. Taylor, Robert McBride, B. Sterling; Riverside Brass Band; Young Men's Pattison Club of Danville, wearing Clevland hats and cape overcoats; Benton Democratic Club with two drum corps, with caps, capes and torches; Bloomsburg Cornet Band; Young Men's Democratic Association of Bloomsburg, with silk hats, carrying red and blue lanterns; Citizens Drum Corps; Catawissa Club; Fantastics; Carriages, decorated wagons, followed by about 150 horsemen bearing torches. The line extended from the depot to Main street, on Market. The parade started at 8 o'clock and came up Market to Main, to East, to Eighth, to Catharine, to Fifth, to Market, to Third, to West, to Main, to East, countermarching to Market, and dismissed, lasting just one hour.

No accident occurred, and the demonstration was a great success. One feature that attracted much attention and afforded amusement, was a rooster 8 feet high that walked at the head of the procession. It moved its head and flapped its wings. It came from Lebanor for the occasion, and was made by Anderson A. Seaman and operated by Mart Mars, both of that place. Numerous transparencies with appropriate lettering were scattered through the line. Thus ended the campaign in Bloomsburg.

ESPY.

Mrs. Staley of Pittston has been visiting Mrs. Worman of this place during the past week.

Miss Nettie Hagenbuch of Light Street, was the guest of Miss Delia Geisinger on Sunday.

Miss Clara Kressler of Wilkesbarre, but formerly of this place, is at present visiting friends and relatives in this vicinity.

Rev. Whitney, Pastor of the M. E. Church of this place, opened a series of Protracted meetings on Sabbath evening last. We hope his efforts in that direction may be crowned with success.

A Luther Day service was successfully rendered by the Lutheran Sabbath school on last Sabbath morning, in commemoration of the birth of Martin Luther, the great reformer, which event occured on the 10th of November 1483, 409 years ago.

Last Friday at about one o'clock while it was raining there came a bright flash of lightning, followed immediately by a tremendous crash of thunder that shook the pictures on the wall and made the windows rattle. Many people were greatly alarmed, and some thought it an earthquake. Fortunately nothing was struck, and there was no repetition of the noise. During the same storm one of the windows in Alexander Bros. & Co's store was broken by the wind. After the thunder storm there was quite a snowfall.

HARRAR—BERNHARD.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Paul's church on Wednesday, November 23rd at 6 o'clock p. m. The contracting parties were Miss Laura E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bernhard, and Mr. Edward H. Harrar, Superintendent of the Acme Oil Company works in this town. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. Shortly after five o'clock the guests began to arrive at the church, and were escorted to seats by the ushers, Messrs. Harry Houck, Frank Wilson and Samuel Bidleman of Bloomsburg, and Robert Harrar of Newark, brother of the groom. A few moments before six the rector, Rev. W. C. Leverett, and the organist entered the chancel from the vestry and took their respective positions. As the town clock struck six the sound of voices was heard in the distance, and slowly grew louder until the doors leading into the Parish House corridor were opened and the surpliced choir of eighteen men and boys entered, singing the 248th hymn. Three of the regular members of the choir were not in their accustomed places, but they were present in the church, one of them being the bridegroom, another his best man, J. Lee Harman, and the third, Harry Houck, one of the ushers. Their places were filled by O. H. Yetter, A. N. Yost and Frank Colley. After the choir came the ushers, then the bridesmaid, Miss Emma Harrar, sister of the bridegroom, of Newark, Miss Emma Townsend, cousin of the bride, Miss Mary Miller, of Bloomsburg, and Miss Olivia Fritz of Scranton. The maid of honor, Miss Jennie Lockard, followed alone, and then came the bride accompanied by her father.

The gentlemen were all attired in full dress suits. The bridesmaids wore empire style dresses of white mull with pink sashes, and carried pink chrysanthemums. The maid of honor's gown was in Empire style, of pink crepe de chene, and she carried pink chrysanthemums. The bride was attired in cream Bengaline silk trimmed with Duchess lace, and carried roses.

As the bride reached the steps to the chancel she was met by the groom who with his best man, entered from the vestry. The betrothal was read at this point and then all advanced to the chancel rail, where the ceremony was concluded. At the close of the blessing the choir sang the 247th hymn and then the procession retired from the church is reverse order. It was a beautiful wedding, and everything moved like clock work.

At 6:30 a large number of guests repaired to Mr. Bernhard's residence on Fifth street, where a reception was held, and refreshments served. The house was handsomely decorated. Numerous beautiful gifts were bestowed upon the bride, including silver, cut glass, linen, pictures, china, furniture &c.

Numerous guests from out of town were present.

At 8:18 Mr. and Mrs. Harrar left on a tour embracing several cities, followed by showers of rice, old shoes, and good wishes.

EAST BENTON.

Extremely beautiful weather for the time of year.

The fall season looks promising.

The imposter, swindler and quack are abroad in the land, seeking whom they devour. One such quack called upon Judge Krickbaum a short time ago, but the Judge is too old to be caught with quack chaff.

The bewitching girls still ply their charming nets, and occasionally entangle young men in their matrimonial meshes.

We understand that the Fishingcreek road machine has made one step in advance toward public favor. It no longer occupies the grove at the St. James Church. It was started for the Columbia county courts, but from latest advices it will hardly get there. A machine is a powerful thing; sometimes it runs a whole county.

A copious rain, accompanied by thunder, lightning and snow, last Friday afternoon replenished the waters sufficiently for winter purposes.

J. O. Wilson of Bendertown, died very suddenly last Friday afternoon. He was a highly respected citizen, and aged about 55 years.

The market reports as they appear in this paper, are corrected weekly, and can be relied upon. By an oversight these were lifted out some weeks ago, and not replaced, but hereafter they will appear regularly.

F. M. Leader is laying a concrete pavement in front of his residence on Fifth street.

WILLIAM RIGHTER TUBBS.

But few men in Columbia county were better known than William R. Tubbs. For ten years he was the proprietor of the Rupert Hotel, and from 1878 until last May the proprietor of the Exchange Hotel, Bloomsburg, and he had hosts of acquaintances, and wherever he was known he had friends. On last Friday afternoon at four o'clock he died, the result of hemorrhages of the lungs, and the announcement was received with universal regret. For several years he has suffered from consumption, but his final illness lasted only a few days. He was married to Margaret Harman, daughter of the late Samuel Harman and sister of the late Jeremiah H. Harman, in 1862, and only four weeks ago he followed her remains to the grave. In his affliction and illness he was most kindly ministered to by his sister-in-law, Mrs. F. J. Schrieber, and his niece, Mrs. Lizzie Fulton, and other friends, but his days were numbered, and careful nursing and medical skill could not avail. The funeral services were held at the house on Monday afternoon at 2,30, and were conducted by Rev. P. A. Heilman. A number of floral tributes were sent in by relatives and friends. The pall-bearers were P. S. Harman, I. W. McKelvy, L. E. Waller, A. Z. Shoch, Joseph Ratti, and C. W. Miller. The attendance was large, many being present from a distance. Among these were W. W. McEwen of Philadelphia, J. C. Fitzpatrick of Chicago, W. R. Fitzpatrick of Harrisburg, W. M. Hughes of Hazleton, Dr. J. M. Gwinner and T. W. Riley of Centralia, M. H. Barr and Fred M. Kelly of Milton, H. W. Barton and H. E. Mandeville of Hazleton, S. A. Goodhne and J. P. Hill of Jamison City, Capt. H. J. Connor of Orangeville, M. H. Culp, Shamokin, Brice R. Blair of Carbondale, Mr. and Mrs. J. Barton, Hazleton, B. F. Fruit of Jerseytown, Major Seesholtz and W. H. Rhawn of Catawissa, W. M. Monroe, Lloyd Paxton, Rupert, Judge Millard, Willow Grove.

Mr. Tubbs' age was 57 years. His mother is living at Shickshinny, but on account of her advanced age, 81 years, was unable to attend the funeral. His sisters Mrs. H. M. Gordon, also of Shickshinny, and her husband, and Mrs. John I Blair and her husband, of Carbondale were present.

The subject of this sketch was a man of genial, whole-souled disposition, always ready to help the needy, charitable to the poor, liberal to the church, and in favor of every movement which in his judgment was calculated to benefit the community. He has been President or director of more corporations probably than any other man in the town. As a friend he was always valuable, and his word could always be relied upon. His death is a great loss to the community and as the clods rattled upon his casket at the cemetery, many a silent tear was shed, and many a man felt that the grave was closing over a tried and true friend and an honest man. Peace to his ashes.

MILLVILLE.

R. B. Grimes was called to Lightsteet last Sunday by the sickness of his mother.

Albert Metzgar and family of Clarkstown spent Sunday in town.

S. Emily Eves, Sarah Rich and C. W. Eves are putting down a neat stone pavement in front of their properties on Main St. They are the Ohio stone.

Jas. Rote fell one day last week and hurt his leg so that he is confined to the house.

Mrs. Wm. Williams is quite sick with the grip.

Joel Richendiffer who has been sick for about a year, died at the home of his son-in-law, Pierce White at Mazeppa, Union County. The remains were brought here on the noon train Monday. The funeral took place on Wednesday at nine o,clock A. M. interment at Kitchen's grave yard His age was 67 years. He leaves a wife and nine children, some of whom reside in the west. Two of his son-in-law's, D. F. Herring and A. Heacock reside here in town.

Byron Keller now has exclusive control of the stove trade, having recently bought out Ellis Eves & Bro. and Master and Co.

Morris Kinney while playing foot ball at school last Monday fell and ran a lead pencil in his breast, which made quite a hole, but nothing serious.

Among the contemplated improvements in the near future is a neat flag stone pavement by R. B. Grimes.

D. F. Herring is making preparations necessary for an application for the Post Office.

JAMISON CITY CLEVELAND JUBILEE.

On Saturday last the democrats of Sugarloaf township celebrated the Cleveland victory in a truly democratic manner. Arrangements had been made with the B. & S. R. R. to issue excursion tickets for the round trip returning after the parade. As the train pulled out from Bloomsburg we noticed some of our prominent democrats all aboard for Jamison, Chairman Mercer, Hon. Judge Ikeler, Sheriff Mourey, Jno. R. Townsend, A. L. Fritz, T. B. Hanley, J. K. Sharpless, H. Rhoades and others. Delegations were taken aboard at Lightstreet, Orangeville, Stillwater and Benton. On the arrival of the train at Jamison City the various delegations were met by the Jamison City Band. A hickory pole had just been raised, standing one hundred and three feet high being one the most handsome hickory poles we have seen in many a year.

The visitors were conducted to the Hall and supplied with a bounteous free lunch prepared by the Committee and of which not less than five hundred must have partaken.

Among the many familiar faces we saw there were the Fritzes and Hesses and Coles and Kiles and last but not least Esquire Peterman, the old standbys of Sugarloaf democracy together with many others.

The City presented a truly patriotic appearance. The stores and private houses were gay with flags and lanterns, showing how heartily the citizens had decided to celebrate.

At 6 o'clock there was a grand muster for the parade. Horsemen began to arrive and torches flashed in all directions. The Benton Democratic Club in uniform and torches, headed by the Drum Corps formed a prominent feature in the procession.

John Hill, Esq., was marshal and mounted on a fiery steed he looked resplendant in a handsome scarf and Cleveland hat, galloping to and fro getting men and horses in line. At last the procession started on the line of march up Main street to Germantown. The street was now one blaze of red fire. Roman candles, together with the Rockets red glare showed how the Sugarloaf Democrats, young and old, were rejoicing, in the great victory of the Democratic Party.

The procession having returned to the Hall the speakers of the evening, Messrs. Sharpless and Hanley delivered short addresses and reviewed the late Democratic victory in a clear and concise style. After three cheers for the speaker, the procession reformed and marched down to Central and back.

One of the greatest sights we saw was the illumination of Proctor Inn far up on the mountain side. The Hotel looked fairy-like with each window illuminated, the exterior of the building decorated with flags, bunting and japanese lanterns showed plainly that mine host Hill is a Democrat of the right kind.

The democrats of Jamison City have reason to feel proud of the celebration, and great credit is due those gentlemen who took such an active part in the arrangements. We saw among others, Messrs. Flynn, Hill, Stedman, Phleger, Sterner among the foremost. Precisely at 11 o'clock the whistle blew and all aboard was heard and in a few minutes the train pulled out and everybody felt like giving three cheers for Jamison City Celebration.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES.

The Students' Lecture Course of the Normal School will be opened this year with one of the very strongest, brighest and most pleasing companies that it is the good fortune of an American audience to enjoy.

THE BOSTON STAR.

accompanied by Mrs. Nella Brown-Pond, is a company of specialists. Each one of the members has an especial part in the programme.

Mrs Pond is recognized as the most powerful yet the most pleasing and entertaining elocutionist upon the lyceum platform.

Mr. Charles D. Kellogg, whose performance for absolute novelty and genuine merit ranks him among the very best entertainers of the day, is simply wonderful. He is a phenomenon and a novelty never even dreamed of.

Miss Lida J. Low, as pianist and accompanist has been associated with Mrs Pond for a number of years. Her real merit and pleasing appearance are sure to make her a favorite.

This talented company will appear in the Normal School auditoruim Saturday evening Nov. 26, at 8 o'clock.

The diagram is at W. H. Brooke & Co's Bookstore.

It snowed and rained on Monday, and snowed again on Tuesday.

ST. PAUL'S PARISH NOTES.

Next Sunday is the beginning of Advent. The evening service will be for the Sunday School, led by the surpliced choir. It will commence at seven o'clock.

Evening service hereafter will begin at seven instead of half past seven, during the winter.

Thanksgiving services were held on Thursday morning, and an appropriate sermon preached by the Rector. A collection was taken up for St. Luke's Hospital, South Bethlehem.

A church decorator was here from Philadelphia last week, and met the Rector, and members of the committee on church decoration. The interior of the church has not been touched in twenty two years, except a little work on the chancel. It needs attention badly. The roof leaks in places, and the plastering inside is discolored in spots. It is proposed to do all needed repairing, and to paint the interior throughout, and to put in cushions and a new carpet. When this is done it will make the entire property beautiful and complete. To do this will require $1700. There is now a fund on hand of about $800, so that it will be necessary to raise $900 more. The church has no debt at present, and none will be required. Should this work be undertaken, it will require several weeks, perhaps two or three months, to do it. It is hoped that it can be done by May 1893, when the parish will celebrate the centennial anniversary of its admission into union with the Diocesan convention.

Boys who can read, between the ages of 8 and 13, are wanted, who will attend the choir rehearsals on Thursday evenings and Sunday afternoons, and learn to sing, so that they can be ready to fill vacancies as they occur.

The choir expects to give an entertainment of some kind before Christmas, to raise money to pay off a debt still existing, arising from the changes necessary in preparing for a surpliced choir. It is expected that the Ladies' Guild room will be furnished soon.

MAINVILLE.

Mr. U. J. Campbell is still dangerously ill, but he is some better at the present writing.

Many from this vicinity attended the dedication of the new church in Beaver Valley, on the 13th inst

Miss Emma Dresher of Ringtown is visiting friends in this neighborhood.

Mr. John Breisch has been kept very busy for the last several weeks with his thresher. He has a traction engine, and does things up in a hurry.

Messrs. F. P. Grover and C. Minsinger went to Buffalo on Saturday to buy some cattle. They expect to be gone about a week.

Among the number from this place who took in the parade at Bloom on Monday night, we noticed Messrs E. M. Mauser, Geo. Shuman, Freas Bauman and J. W. Kelchner. who are all fine adherents to the grand old democracy.

The Espy ferryman seems to want to accommodate himself, to detriment of others, so people say. Perhaps he only wanted to play a campaign joke on some whom he would not ferry across after the parade, but we have heard of such indifference on his part before, and for the benefit of the public we so state it as we should think it would not be a very pleasant thing to spend the time waiting and hunting in the cold for a ferryman and then have to go some place else to get across. The Stonytown ferryman says he always ferries whenever he hears the bell ring. Hurry up with that bridge, then most of this trouble can be saved.

Mr J. W. Kelchner expects to go to Clearfield county on Thursday where he will work at the trestling on a new railroad.

PHILO REUNION.

The annual reunion of the Philologian Society takes place this Thursday evening in the Auditorium of the Normal School, beginning at 8o'clock. The program will consist of music by the school orchestra under the leadership of Prof. Butts, and a drama entitled "The Cricket on the Hearth." The new auditorium, the new stage and the new curtain give the students unexcelled facilities for dramatic performances. All are invited. Admission ten cents.

The Benton Club attracted much attention in the parade. They looked well in their uniforms, and marched like soldiers. They were highly complimented on their fine appearance.

PERSONAL.

A. Z. Schoch and F. P. Billmeyer spent last week in Chicago on business.

Julius Lindegren, the piano tuner, expects to be in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Funston spent a few days in Philadelphia this week.

Prof. T. B. Miller spent a couple of days in town this week.

Mrs. G. N. Wilson and Mrs. C. W. Runyon recently spent a couple of weeks in Philadelphia and Allentown.

Edwin Gosler has moved into the Sanitarium. He comes from Danville.

Warren W. Zaner of Colorado, son of John Zaner of Fishing creek township, is visiting his relatives in this county.

Prof. L. P. Sterner went to New York on Wednesday to see the game of foot-ball between Yale and Princeton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson McKelvy attended the wedding of Miss Lineaweaver and Mr. Kennedy in Philadelphia last week.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Charles Unangst Esq. to Miss Katie Hencken of New York, on December 1st, at St. James' Lutheran Church in that city.

Among the Benton people in town on Monday night were Hilbert H. Hulme, John G. McHenry, Dr. J. B. Laubach, Abram Hartman, Glen Tubbs, and many others.

Mr. Charles Shaffer of Briarcreek township, who is in business at Harrisburg, came home Saturday last. He was anxious to attend some of the democratic jubilees in this section.

Eli McHenry and W. W. Hess of Benton township went to Buffalo last Saturday, the object of their visit being to buy cattle to fatten for market. Both are excellent farmers and own fine properties. They understand cattle and selected a carload of nice stock.

Mr. M. F. Eyerly of Williamsport, came over to Bloomsburg Saturday and remained a few days in town with his friends. He is elated at the democratic victory. The city of Williamsport gave 326 democratic majority. It was the first the city went that way too. We would suggest that he ought to move to Philadelphia and help the poor democrats to gain a victory there.

Geo. W. Hess, jeweler and stationer, left Watsontown this week for Bloomsburg with his household goods and store fixtures. He will have auction of a portion of his stock next month, as noted in his new advertisement this week. During his several years residence here Mr. Hess has made many friends, being a first-class workman, a reliable business man and a good Christian gentleman. We unite in the general regret at his departure from town and hope he will fully realize his successful anticipations in his new location.—Record and Star, Watsontown.

Mr. Hess and his brother, H. W. Hess of Mifflinville, this county, salesman for J. C. Bright & Co., of Hazleton, Pa., will open a jewelry and stationery store in Moyer's Block, cor. Iron and Main street under the firm name of Hess Bros in a few weeks. Look for their announcement.

The Daily News of Nanticoke thus speaks of Prof. William Noetling, who was one of the instructors in the monthly institute at that place last Saturday. His subject was school government.

"He prefaced his remarks with a graphic description of the old-time schools when physical force was the prime element in school discipline. He showed why it was necessary to use force in these schools because then the pupil had a total lack of interest in his work. School Government is more, vastly more, than methods of keeping order in the schoolroom. It is an important part in the education of the citizens who are to rule this Republic in the coming years.

Prof. Noetling showed the teachers some of the means of securing good school government. He said that the teachers must first become acquainted with their pupils. A teacher should be a good student of human nature. She should be thoroughly acquainted with the nature of every individual child in her school. The teacher should try to keep the pupils busy for they will be less liable to be mischievous. Prof. Noetling is an interesting speaker and the teachers enjoyed his address very much."

The Pennsylvania congressional delegation at the beginning of the next session of congress will be composed of twenty two Republicans and eight Democrats.

THE CATTLE BELLS.

Far down the brown autumnal haze—
High on the peak is snow—
Cattle that smell the winter days
Tinkle their bells as they go.

Out of a thick veil drawn to save
The sky's face from the blast,
Those tiny bells, as fairies wave
Their wand, evoke the past.

That music once before I heard,
But then the notes were glad,
Caroling like a careless bird;
Ah, why now is it sad?

Upon this brow now crowned by care
My love a garland laid;
We heard the bells, now here, now there;
Dead are the leaves and maid.

Mayhap for happier maid and man
The tender music swells,
And I will smile while yet I can
List to the cattle bells.

A PEDDLER'S PERIL.

The sun sank behind the western mountain peaks, and the short twilight of southern latitudes came on apace. After a time the man of the house came in. He was tall and thin. Two ferret-like eyes gleamed sharply upon the peddler from amid a shaggy tangle of white hair and beard.

He placed his long rifle in a rack over the door, unslung his shot pouch and then seated himself and gazed gloomily into the fire, without vouchsafing either a greeting to the stranger or a word to his own family. Nan, passing by, whispered to the peddler:

"Don't ye mind uncle; he's got one of his bad spells on now, but if he ain't bothered it'll pass off by and by."

The peddler nodded, and began a tale concerning one of his adventures in Texas. He was soon interrupted by Aunt Viney.

"Sit up, stranger," said she. "We hain't got much to eat, but such as it is you're welcome."

The old man ate his supper in solemn silence, after which he took his hat and abruptly left the cabin. Aunt Viney saw fit to explain.

"Mose, my old man, hain't been exactly like hisself since the revenoo men carried his son John off five year ago last April."

"'Stillin I s'pose?"

"Yes, 'nd top of that he shot one of 'em while they were tryin to take him, 'nd they put him in pen'tensh'ry at Nashville for ten year."

The peddler remained silent for a moment or two. But when the dishes were washed and put away he again entertained the two women by relating sundry reminiscences of his own career, and also describing the wonders of certain great cities he had visited.

After awhile Mose again stalked silently in and took a sent in a far corner. While the peddler talked he continued to eye him closely, as if suspicious that the stranger was not just what he should be.

"Speakin of the telephone," continued the peddler, "some folks in these mountains don't believe that people can talk to each other, 'nd them a hundred or more miles apart, but I tell ye it's a fact. I've seed it done myself."

"I've knowed of men hollerin across from one mountain to another," said Aunt Viney dubiously. "Mebbe they could make themselves heard a matter of two miles. But a hundred"— she shook her head disapprovingly.

"It's so all the same, though. I'v sot 'nd heard 'em talkin jus' as we be now."

"That's as big a lie as ever was told," exclaimed old Mose, rising and making for the door.

He seized his rifle as he passed, threw a menacing glance at the peddler and once more left the cabin.

"Old man's a little touched in the head, ain't he?" asked the peddler, who seemed to take no offense whatever at the old man's rude behavior.

"Ever since John was took off he's had queer spells that come over him every now and then. I must say he's more'n apt to be 'spishus of strangers when they come around. He's always thinkin of revenoo spies. I dessay that's what makes him act so toward you. But you musn't mind him. I never know'd him to succeed in hurtin any one yet."

It was Nan who replied, for Aunt Viney was making preparations to retire for the night. When the girl and the peddler were left alone the latter seemed somewhat curious about this son John, who for so many years had been under the ban of the law.

"John was always good to Uncle Mose and Aunt Viney, 'nd that's one reason Uncle Mose takes it all so hard now."

"I s'pose, bein as you're kin to 'em, you must 'a' felt powerful bad when they took him off."

He eyed Nan closely as he spoke, and the girl blushed slightly.

"I ain't no real kin to 'em," said she. "My folks is all dead, 'nd they raised me from a little gal, but John 'nd me was always good friends."

"Nothin more?"

The girl looked at him reprovingly.

"It's about bedtime," said she coldly. "Shan't I show you were you're to sleep?"

The peddler rose, took up his pack and followed her into the little shed room. There was an open window by the bed, through which the full moon was shining.

"You won't need no light, I reckon," she remarked. Then, bidding him good night, she returned to the main cabin and went to bed herself.

But for some reason she failed to sleep. The bright moonlight, the rasping cry of the katydids from the trees without and the discomforting nature of her thoughts kept her awake. She felt vaguely uneasy about Uncle Mose. Where was he? Very likely at the little moonshine still up Bear hollow, half a mile away. He often spent the night there engaged in his illicit toil. She remembered his unfriendly treatment of the peddler, whose heavy breathing could now be heard through the thin partition wall. He had once laid in wait, rifle in hand, for a passing drover, whom he had set down for a spy. Only Aunt Viney's prompt appearance had prevented a probable murder. Uncle Mose, though a good man enough when in his right mind, was a dangerous, uncertain personage when stirred by the memory of his son into a spirit of half insane hostility against all the world.

So uneasy did Nan become that at last she rose, slipped on her dress and stole out into the moonlight. An impulse she could not control impelled her to peep in at the peddler's open window. She was prompted by an indefinable fear. What she saw there caused her to start back, clasp her hands and gasp for breath. Then, trembling in every limb, she looked again.

"My God!" she faltered. "Am I dreamin? Surely it can't be—'nd yet I must believe my own eyes."

Acting under a new impulse she turned and fled along the trail leading to the still. Arrived there she found the place silent and deserted. There was no fire in the furnace and nothing to be heard but the cries of the whippoorwills upon the mountain side.

Full of painful forebodings she retraced her steps and once more crouched beneath the peddler's window. There she waited until her limbs became cramped and the night air chilled her to the bone.

"I might as well lie down again," she thought. "I reckon uncle's gone down the valley, for he 'lowed today as he'd have to go after coffee right away. I could wake the man up, but somehow I dassn't. He might think I was forward."

But a second trial of the bed was no better than the first. The peddler's heavy breathing was ever in her ears, and her thoughts reverted constantly to the sense of peril that vaguely, yet persistently kept her upon the tenterhooks of anxiety.

"I wish mornin would come," she said for the hundredth time. "Lord, what a meeting there'll be then!"

The sound of a stealthy footfall upon the gravel without brought her to a sitting position at once. Her heart beat loudly as she listened breathlessly. Yes, it was moving around the house. Now she heard it no more. Could she have imagined it all? No; there it was again —in the back porch.

Then—then—she heard a gentle creaking sound. Ah! The shedroom door! She sprang out of bed, and a hasty bound brought her to the door leading into the back porch. She wrenched it open just in time to catch a glimpse of a tall shadow that disappeared within the shedroom.

"Good Lord, help me!" she faintly ejaculated as she sprang forward, nerved to desperation by this dreadful fulfillment of her fears.

She entered the room. There lay the peddler, slumbering heavily in the white glow of the moonlight. His face was strangely altered, for the heavy beard had fallen off, leaving exposed a clean shaven, youthful face. But the white bearded old man bending over the prostrate form with uplifted knife saw nothing distinctly. To his morbid imaginings only the form of a hated spy lay helpless before him. A spy in the service of the detested "revenoos," who had robbed him of his only and well beloved son.

"Uncle!" screamed Nan, dragging him back. "Uncle! You shall not. Can't you see? It's John—our John—your John!"

The peddler woke and stared upward in a bewildered way. The knife fell to the floor as Mose, his eyes almost starting from his head, stared at his son's white face. Suddenly he comprehended, and the effect descended upon him like a thunderbolt.

Uttering a low, quivering cry he sank to his knees by the bedside, and his head fell forward. Nan's and John's eyes met in a mutually recognizing glance; then they turned their attention to the old man. As they laid him upon the bed Aunt Viney, awakened by the noise, came in. She fell as though confronted by a ghost.

"John!" she exclaimed. "Yet it can't shorely be!"

"Yes, it is, mother. I didn't know how you'd all take my bein so long in the pen, so when the governor pardoned me out I 'lowed I'd come home as a peddler 'nd in disguise till I found out if you all cared for me any more."

While John was speaking Mose opened his eyes, and tears blinded them as he gazed.

"My son, my son!" he murmured brokenly. "And I might have killed him! My mind's made up. There'll be no more 'stillin done in Bear holler after this."

"Do you reckon Nan cares for me any more, father?" asked John, while his eyes sought those of Nan.

"Of course she do. Hasn't she been grievin herself away ever since you was took. She never looked at another man."

Nan's confusion seemed to sanction this.

"There's only one thing to be done," interrupted Aunt Viney decisively. They've just got to go over to the circuit rider's next Sunday 'nd git married. After that's over 'nd done with, Mose, I do hope you'll behave yourself in futur'."

"Hain't I said I weren't a-goin to 'still whisky any more?" said Mose. "'Stillin's been at the bottom of all our troubles."

While the old folks talked John took Nan's hand in his, and they stealthily kissed each other.—William Perry Brown in Philadelphia Times.

Children and Young Animals.

The playfulness that is characteristic of children is no less so of kittens, nor is their imitativeness more typical than that from which the word "to ape" has been derived. Curiosity, inventiveness, dislike of ridicule, love of being fondled, craving for attention, with the resulting jealousy and anger when such attention is refused, are types of more complex emotions common to intelligent animals and children. Indeed the terms of familiarity so often found and so easily established between children and their pets cannot but be based, in part at least, upon a deep sympathy and community of emotional life.—Joseph Justrow in Popular Science Monthly.

A SCOTCH TRADITION.

MERCILESS WARFARE OF ONE OF THE OLD SCOTTISH CLANS.

A Terrible Story of the Frightful Destruction of a Whole Race, the Inhabitants of One Island—Even Today the Spot Is Said to Be Haunted.

A friend of mine made a prolonged tour of Scotland last year to indulge in his favorite pastime—fishing—of which there is none better in the whole world than among the highlands and contiguous islands of that country. He brought back with him a vast storehouse of the strange tales of the primitive people among whom he sojourned, for he avoided the usual lines of travel, confining his wanderings to the remote villages and out of the way places which the ordinary tourist never visits. He lived for months with the peasant and fisherman class, with whom, ingratiating himself into their good graces, he learned much of the traditions current in the region, which have only been kept alive by being handed down from father to son through the generations.

At one time residing with a simple fisherman on one of the Hebrides, that group made famous by the celebrated tour of Dr. Johnson and Boswell, he was told a strange story pertaining to a cave on one of the islands, which he afterward visited with his host, making the weird tradition doubly interesting. It was this:

More than three centuries ago there existed two clans between which there had waged the most bitter and relentless warfare for generations. Of course the people of both factions were but little more civilized than the North American Indians when Columbus gave a new world to Spain. Both clans lived by stealing from their neighbors, decidedly preferring this mode of life to an honest endeavor of raising anything for themselves. Their tenure of the dark glens which they claimed was held by the prowess of their primitive bows and arrows, their rude claymores and ruder dirks. Ignorant, cruel and vindictive, the several clans hated each other with a hatred unknown but to dense ignorance; they hated simply because their names differed, because they had been taught that differences between names meant feuds between races.

One of these two contending clans lived on one of the little islands of the Hebridean group, a barren, rocky, desolate spot, surrounded only by the eternal surf. One mild winter day came the boats of their hated enemy. The intention of the invaders was of course to kill, plunder and destroy. They did plunder and burn the huts they found on the shore, but not a human being was found that they could massacre. The whole island appeared to have been abandoned. The invaders ransacked it well; traversed every glen and every ravine and wondered where their inveterate enemies had gone. Failing in the principal part of their bloody mission, they prepared to leave. They took up their oars, but hardly had they cleared the little creek by which they had entered from the sea when a man, with an apparently extraordinary vision, spied a figure in the uncertain light of a winter's dawn cautiously moving over the rocks.

A shout announced the discovery, and the islander disappeared. But the secret had been betrayed. The inhabitants had hidden themselves, not deserted. In half an hour their assailants had relanded and set themselves with awakened hope to the search. Snow had fallen during the night, and the footsteps of the imprudent islander betrayed the whereabouts of his clan. The highlanders exultingly followed the trail of the enemy, and they soon tracked him to the hiding place of his people, a curious cavern, its entrance through the mazes of rock, overgrown with thick shrubs, a place easily missed by any one not familiar with the locality. In this cave were gathered all the families of the tribe, the women and little children and a few of the old men, the main portion of the young warriors having gone off on an excursion—a marauding one of course—to the neighboring islands.

With shouts of triumph and exulting wrath comparable to the cruel nature of invaders they collected seaweed, driftwood and the dried heath, in which the rocks abounded, and piled around the one entrance to the cavern, its inmates, now cognizant of what their enemies were doing, maintaining the silence of despair. A few words of muttered Gaelic alone passed—and in a short time the material which the savages had gathered was set on fire, the scorching heat from which and the dense smoke rolled in upon the unfortunate occupants of the cavern, when suddenly there arose a wail of agony. Over the crackling and roaring of the huge fire the dying wretches attempted to get out, only to be killed at the mouth of the fierce hell or thrust back with pikes into the scorching flames. At last all sounds ceased—the blaze sunk and died away completely; the fiends had done their work; not a living creature remained within the almost red hot cavern. The clan had been extinguished—a clan less in the highlands of Scotia. The triumphant murderers took to their boats and sailed away again, leaving their dead unburied as they lay.

They never were buried through all the long years. The little island where such atrocities were committed was accursed—haunted by spirits of those who had met their horrible fate there. It was also claimed by the fishermen of the other islands that whenever they happened to pass that way in the night low wailings were distinctly heard, sharp, piercing shrieks, and that ghastly skeletons were seen walking on the beach, and the place was avoided as a pest hole. After many generations these superstitious notions died out. Now the island is inhabited again, but the dreadful legend sticks to it, and it is said that many a human bone is dug up by the small gardeners.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Hunter Hunted.

An old huntsman was returning one evening from a neighbor's when he heard a flock of wild turkeys in a clump of pines. They were going to roost, and he at once resolved to be on hand in the morning and shoot some of them. How he succeeded is best told in his own language:

"The next mornin afore daybreak," says the hunter, "I was on the ground. I hid in an openin between some large bowlders that closed a space on three sides but was open at the top, where a man could stand comfortable 'thout bein seen.

"I set down at the mouth o' the openin, laid my gun on the ground an listened till toward daybreak I heard the turkeys fly down from the roost. I called to 'em two or three times in a way I know. With the second call come answers, an I heard the turkeys comin on the run.

"I was gittin my gun ready when I heard a queer noise like some animal pantin behind me. I turned my head and saw the biggest kind of a wildcat, with mouth wide open an eyes like two full moons, just ready to jump on my back.

"Scart? I sprang to my feet an throwed my arms over my head an give a yell that would have scared a grizzly!

"The cat went one way an I went another. I got out o' my hidin place in a hurry, an stood a few minutes feelin trembly like. Then I went back an picked up my gun an started for home, feelin like a sheep killin dog.

"You see, the wildcat was out lookin for breakfast, an expectin to get the pick o' the turkeys when he see me. I ain't ashamed to own I was flustrated.

"Did I get any turkeys? No; I couldn't have shot a turkey if one had run up an bit me. But I laid for that wildcat till I got him; leastways I took it for him, although I own I didn't stop long enough that first sight o' the creeter to examine him over partic'lar. It's allus been an unsettled p'int in my mind which was scart the worst, the cat or me."—Cor. Forest and Stream.

Why It Seemed Dark.

The fact that the kitchen door of the Collins cottage at Pleasant Harbor was painted black led to an incident that caused the Pleasant Harbor townspeople much amusement. Miss Laura Collins, the elder of the two elderly women who lived in the cottage, used to tell the story thus:

My sister Emmeline is what you might call absentminded. She gets her mind set on something, and then she doesn't pay real strict attention to what she's doing. One evening she came into the kitchen where I was sitting and said, "I'm going down to the corner to call on Mrs. Stone."

And I said: "I will go. It's a pleasant evening for a walk; moonlight, and the stars are out."

I noticed that Emmeline had on her big sunbonnet, but I didn't say anything about it; everybody in the village was used to seeing her wear it in the evening, and even on rainy days. I went on sewing, and in a minute I heard Emmeline say: "Why, it must have clouded up suddenly. There isn't a star to be seen. It's a terribly black night!"

I looked up, and there stood Emmeline with the edge of her sunbonnet pressed up against the door. She had forgotten to open it before she looked out to see what kind of a night it was, and of course the door being painted black that made considerable difference.—Youth's Companion.

Patents in England.

Hallam records that all through the Sixteenth and the beginning of the Seventeenth century, patents to deal exclusively in particular articles were granted so lavishly to the courtiers that hardly a commodity remained free. Even salt, leather and coal were the subjects of patents, the list of which, when read over in parliament in 1601, was so long that a member asked incredulously, "Is not bread among the number?"

The practice was for the favored courtiers to sell their patents of monopoly to companies of merchants—or syndicates, as we should call them nowadays—to work them. Rival political parties struggled, not to redress the grievances under which the people groaned, but to obtain a share of the profits. If Essex held a monopoly of sweet wine, Raleigh held one of cards; indeed, it is hard to say how many patents either of them held from first to last.—All the Year Round.

Peculiar Table Customs.

In a book entitled "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages" we are told that in those days dinner tables were covered by a "mappe" or tablecloth. Upon it were placed a large saltcellar, bread and cups for wine, but no knives or plates. The reason for the absence of the knives arose from the common practice in vogue of people carrying their own knives in a sheath attached to their girdle.

In an early work, written by Lydgate —"Rules for Behavior at Table"—the guests are told to bring no knives unscoured to the table, which can only mean that each one was to keep his own knife—that is, the one he carried with him—clean.

A Caustic Letter from Tennyson.

One of Tennyson's last letters was to Mr. William Watson, who had written in The Spectator some lines on Lord Tennyson's "Foresters," which ran:

For be the hour when lesser brows shall wear
The laurel glorious from that wintry hair.

"If," wrote the laureate to Mr. Watson, "by 'wintry hair' you allude to a tree whose leaves are half gone you are right; but if you mean 'white' you are wrong, for I never had a gray hair on my head."—New York Tribune.

Easily Cured.

Father—My son seems to be about as smart as other young men, but he no sooner gets settled in a position than he tires of it and resigns. He lacks staying powers.

Friend—Oh, that's easily cured. Get him a political office.—Good News.

Superstitions About Friday.

From Harper's Young People.

Many years ago, when sailing-ships were the only means of communication between the different countries, superstition was more rife among sailors than at the present time. These absurd fancies were not confined to Jack alone, but they were shared in to a greater or less extent by ship-masters and owners. Friday was considered a day of evil, and the most malignant results were supposed to attend a voyage commenced on this day of the week. In those times he would indeed have been a reckless skipper who would have attempted to sail on this ill omened day, for the crew would have broken out in open rebellion, rather than lift the anchor from the bottom or cast off shore moorings.

Since the advent of steam many of these prejudices have become as direlict as the ship on which they were once entertained.

A true story is told of a sceptical Massachusetts captain who, way back in the early years of the republic, determined to exhibit the fallacy of this particular superstition. He contracted on a certain Friday for the building of a ship, and it was arranged that the keel of this vessel was laid on Friday, that she was launched Friday, named Friday, commenced loading on a Friday, and hauled into the stream on the same day of the week. To add to the possibilities of disaster, a negro cook named Friday was engaged: and thus fully freighted with the sinister name, the Friday sailed on a Friday, bound to a port in the West Indies. From that day to this no tidings of the ill conditioned craft have been received. But those of us who like Friday for various reasons, but chiefly because it leads up to Saturday, upon which day schools are closed, will be pleased to hear that it is not half so unlucky a day as Monday, the day the school opens again. A German statistician, feeling that Friday had been a much-maligned day determined to make a scientific investigation of the matter, and has found that it is not Friday, but Mondap, that is the most unfortunate of the weekdays. According to his investigations 16.74 per cent of all accidents occur on Monday, 15.51 per cent on Tuesday, 16.31 per cent. on Wednesday, 15.47 per cent. on Thursday, 16.38 per cent. on Friday 16.38 per cent. on Saturday, and only 2.69 per cent. on Sunday.

So, you see, Friday isn't so bad a day after all.

Winter Tours to California, Florida, and Other Points of Interest

Some idea of the amount of traveling done by Americans as a people, and the comfort and luxury at their command, is gathered from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's announcement of its personally-conducted tours for 1893.

First comes a series to the Golden Gates, starting from New York, Philadelphia, and Harrisburg, February 8th, March 2d, and March 29th, 1893. Tourists will travel by superbly appointed special trains of Pullman drawing room cars, under the supervision of a Tourist Agent and Chaperon.

Next in importance comes series of five to Florida—January 31st, February 14th and 28th, March 14th and 28th. The first four admit of two weeks in the sunny South, while tickets for the fifth tour are good to return by regular trains until May 30th 1893.

They will be conducted on the same general principles, and maintained at that high standard manifested on all Pennsylvania Railroad Company's personally-conducted tours. For information and detailed itineraries now being prepared, apply to Ticket Agent or Tourist Agent, 849 Broadway, New York; 860 Fulton Street, Brooklyn; or 233 South Fourth Street, Philadelphia.

About two-thirds of the men in this country use tobacco.

Lamp-chimneys cost so little that we let them go on breaking. We go on buying and grumbling.

What should we do?

Get Macbeth's "Pearl-top" and "Pearl-glass;" they are made of tough glass, tough against heat; they do not break in use; they do from accident.

They are fine, well made, exact; they fit the lamps they are made for; stand upright; the shade is right; they make a right draught for light; they are uniform. Both bear a label for your protection. Look for it.

Be willing to pay a nickel more and stop this constant expense and annoyance.

OH, SHOUTIN'S MIGHTY SWEET.

Oh, shoutin's mighty sweet
When yer shout when yer meet,
An shek han's roun an say:
"Bless Gord fur de meetin!
Bless Gord fur de greetin!"
Shoutin comes mighty easy dat a-way.

But ter shout when yer part,
An ter shout f'om yo' heart,
When yer gwine far away, far away,
Wid a lettin go han's
An a-facin strange lan's,
Shoutin comes mighty hard such a day.

"Glory" sticks in yo' th'oat
At de whistle o' de boat,
Dat cuts lak a knife thoo yo' heart;
An "Hallelulah" breaks
At de raisin o' de stakes
Dat loosens up de ropes ter let 'er start.

But ef yer fix yo' eye
On de writin in de sky,
Whar de "goodbys" is all strucken out,
An read de promus clair
Of another geth'rin there,
You kin say far'well, my brothers, with a shout.

Den shout, brothers, shout!
Oh, tell yo' vict'ry out,
How neither death nur partin kin undo yer;
Look fust at yo' loss,
But last at de cross,
Singin glory, glory, glory hallelulah!

Hard to Satisfy.

Some persons are hard to satisfy. The thing in hand is of little worth, but the object beyond reach seems all desirable.

A clergyman in Maine, who lives near the seacoast, narrates an occurrence which gave him a moment of disappointment, but which has also supplied him with a very good story to tell.

He had planned a beautiful drive for the benefit of a lady from the west who was visiting his family—a lady who had never seen the ocean. The route was chosen in such a way that not a glimpse of the sea would be had until, at a certain bend in the road, the party would come out upon a high open space, commanding a magnificent view of the broad Atlantic.

As the carriage came out upon the plateau the clergyman turned a beaming face on the lady, expecting from her an exclamation of delight; but instead of happiness on her countenance, he saw a look of longing.

"Oh," she said, with a sigh, "how I wish I could see the Pacific!"—Youth's Companion.

Seen in the Metropolis.

A refuse cart was close to the curb on Thirty-seventh street, between Madison and Fifth avenues, recently, while the driver, a healthy young Irishman, talked to a woman who had on each side a little chap dressed in sailor costume. Most passersby must have taken her for a nurse out with her charges from one of the fashionable houses near by. After two minutes' talk the woman lifted the lads one by one to the side of the rough driver, who had carefully spread a piece of stout paper over his cargo to protect the clothing of the children.

One lad, tucked close under the driver's arm, was permitted to hold the reins, while the other poked the staid horse with a short stick. The three drove off eastward, smiling, while the woman followed on the sidewalk. The children were the driver's own, and they were as well dressed as half the children native to the locality in which the scene occurred.—New York Sun.

Books with Uncut Leaves.

A book, the leaves of which are uncut, possesses no value of an intrinsic character beyond one that is cut, but really less. For that matter, if it is to remain uncut, it is as valueless as it is useless. There is a class of book collectors, however, who place a premium upon books with uncut leaves, and so commend them in their advertisements and circulars. There are persons who load certain shelves in their libraries with uncut books. Of course they are not for use and are not used, and are valueless except for keeping.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How Fishes Multiply.

Piscatory authorities of the highest standard tell us that were it not for nature's grand "evening up" provisions, the fishes of the seas would multiply so rapidly that within three short years they would fill the waters to such an extent that there would be no room for them to swim. This will hardly be disputed when it is known that a single female cod will lay 45,000,000 eggs in single season.—St. Louis Republic.

Honeymoon Cookery.

"And so my little wife cooked this all herself? What does she call it?"

"Well, I started it for bread, but after it came out of the oven I concluded I'd better put sauce on it and call it pudding."—Exchange.

There are but 100 colored voters in North Dakota. There are 15,000 in the city of Baltimore. Baltimore has an area of thirty-swo square miles; North Dakota has an area of 70,000 square miles.

Whittier, the poet, it is reported, said to the doctors in attendance a day or two before his death, "You have done the best possible, and I thank you; but it is of no use—I am worn out."

Strange stories are frequently told of the doings of electricity, and there is no doubt that of all the forces of nature this is the most capable of eccentric manifestation.

The pyrometer measures heat in degrees and fractions, and will give accurate figures even though the heat runs up to the unthinkable intensity of 7,000 degs.

HOW THEY SMILE.

Immediately after the election our republican friends said they were glad the democratic party would have control of the Senate and House of Representatives, together with the presidency. They say, give the democrats full control and let us see what they will do. These expressions from the republicans, were from the lips only and not from the heart. The Philadelphia Inquirer of the 18th, gives the real situation in the following words:

"The country seems to be just wakened up to a full understanding of what the Democratic victory means. Hundreds of thousands of full-grown men voted the Democratic ticket under the impression that it Cleveland did not suit they could turn him out at the end of four years. Unfortunately for people who do not take the trouble to understand the plan of the United States Government, while Cleveland may be turned out, it is not so easy to reverse the Democratic majority in the United States Senate. The tariff smashers may get in their work; the country may reverse the recent verdict four years hence, but unless the Democratic majority in the Senate be reversed the election of a Republican President and House would count for little. A large majority of the Senators who will go into office in 1895 will nearly all come from Democratic States. It is one thing to give a party control of all the governmental machinery; it is another thing to dislodge it so as to place matters where they were before. Foresight is a good deal better than hindsight.

The Logic of the Situation.

It was the logic of the situation which compelled the nomination of Grover Cleveland.

He stood pre-eminent as the embodiment of the main issue of the campaign, an issue forced by himself—tariff reform. Not to have nominated him would have been to shirk the issue. The Democratic party displayed the pluck of its preferences as well as the courage of its convictions when it renominated the author of the famous tariff reform message.

The logic of the situation to-day points as plainly to an early revision of the tariff twice condemned by the people.

In their national platform the Democrats denounced the McKinley act as the "culminating atrocity of class legislation" and "promised its repeal as one of the beneficent results that will follow the action of the people in intrusting power to the Democratic party.

When the people accepted this promise and gave full power to the Democratic party they did not expect that its fulfilment would be delayed for two years. The burden of unequal taxation presses upon them now. They have a right to expect relief as soon as it can be afforded with due deliberation and proper care.

The logic and the necessities of the situation point to an extra session to prepare the way for prompt and yet intelligent and conservative action when the regular session shall meet. The next President is a Democrat in order that the will of the people may be the law of the land. That will should be made law without unnecessary delay.—World.

Additional Tax on Distilled Spirits.

For some time past there have been reports that the administration would recommend to congress, on its reassembling in December, the imposition of an additional tax of forty cents a gallon on distilled spirits to meet the deficit which it is feared may arise in the government finance owing to heavy pension payments. It can be stated on good authority that there is very little probability, if indeed there be even a possibility.

Loss by Fire in Philadelphia.

With the exception of the year 1891 the present year has been the most destructive to property in the city by fire since the year 1886. As compared with the corresponding months of 1891, there were 1,005 fires in 1892 against 944 in 1891, with a loss this year of $1,806,789 against a loss of $2,098,275 in 1891. Upon the losses this year there was $14,822,390 insurance.

THE PATH OF DUTY.

Cleveland Sees a Bright Future.

FOR THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY AND THE COUNTRY.

The speech made by President elect Cleveland at the banquet given by Henry Villard recently has been made public. In the course of it he said:

"Every feeling of jubilation and even my sense of gratitude is so tempered as to be almost entirely obscured by a realization, nearly painful, of the responsibility I have assumed in the sight of the American people. My love of country, my attachment to the principles of true Democracy, my appreciation of the obligation I have entered into with the best and most confiding people in the world, and a consciousness of my own weakness and importance, all conspire to fill my mind with sober and oppressive reflection. When I consider all that we have to do as a party charged with the control of the government, I feel that our campaign instead of being concluded is but just begun.

"What shall our performance be of the contract we have made with our countrymen and how shall we justify the trust they have imposed in us? If we see nothing in our victory but a license to revel in partisan spoils, we shall fail at every point. If we merely profess to enter upon our work, and if we make apparent endeavor to do it as a cover for seeking partisan advantage, we shall invite contempt and disgrace. If we attempt to discharge our duty to the people without complete party harmony in patriotic action, we shall demonstrate our incompetency.

"I thank God that far above all doubts and misgivings, and way beyond all difficulties we may constantly see the lights of hope and safety. The light we see is the illumination from the principles of true, honest and pure Democracy, showing the way in all times of danger and leading us to the fulfillment of political duty and the redemption of our pledges. This light is kindled in the love of justice and in devotion to the peoples rights. It is bright in a constant patriotism and in a nation's promise. Let us not be misled to our undoing by other lights of false Democracy which may be kindled in broken faith, and which, shining in hypocracy will, if followed, lure us to the rocks of failure and disgrace."

The New Congress.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS TO FORMALLY DISCUSS THE GENERAL TARIFF POLICY OF THE PARTY.

While the Democratic leaders, are, as a rule, opposed to the proposition for an extra session, and Mr. Cleveland himself does not favor it, such a situation is developing as will make it probable that the Fifty-third congress will meet early in October of next year instead of their assembling being delayed until next December. Between now and the 4th of March and probably at an early day, there will be a formal secret conference or a series of conferences between President elect Cleveland, Senator Carlisle, Speaker Crisp, Senator Gorman, Senator Vorhees, Representative Wilson, and probably McMillan, and Senator Mills for the purpose of discussing the general tariff policy of the party.

It is expected that in this way will be outlined before congress meets about what is to be done with the tariff. The reason that both President elect Cleveland and the party leaders are now unable to determine whether or not there should be an extra session is that the question does not depend entirely upon the tariff. If that were the only matter it could be definitely stated now that there would be no extra session as it can be that there will be none before Fall. The financial situation of the government, however, will probably compel congress to come together a month or two earlier than the Democrats will otherwise consider desirable

The Tariff and Business.

The public will take little note of the disappointed partisans who threaten to stop their mills and factories because the people have revolted against the McKinley tariff. Such threats must come from three classes of business men—first, the few who have been enriched by tariff taxes and paid out their money as usual to buy continued control of tariff legislation; second, the violent partisans who learn nothing and forget nothing; and, third, the bankrupt business men who are seeking some excuse for proclaiming their want of business skill and success.

There has been no Presidential contest during the last score of years that has not been speedily followed by reductions of wages in many of our protected industries. The protected employers are always averse to reduced wages or stopping mills during national campaigns, as they want to control the votes of their workmen in favor of high tariff candidates; but when the election is over and political necessities perish, wage reduction and stoppages of mills follow regardless of the decision of the people.

The national contest of 1888 was fought on the tariff issue, and increased prosperity and wages were promised on every side if Harrison won; but within one year after his election, wages had been reduced in hundreds of protected industries in this city, and over one hundred of our protected establishments were closed. What followed the election of Harrison may follow the election of Cleveland for a season; but in neither case did the verdict of the people in the choice of a President decide the reduction of work or wages.

The man engaged in any industrial pursuit that has a legitimate foundation, who now decides to stop his business or reduce the wages of labor, either does not understand his business or he seeks an excuse to rob his workmen. No tariff bill will become a law during the Cleveland administration that reduces tariff taxes on any of our general products below the point of the full difference between the cost of well paid labor here and abroad in the same calling; and the man who cannot continue his business on that basis of sound and honest protection, should stop at once. The people will not longer consent to be taxed simply to enable a few individuals to amass unearned fortune.

If protected manufacturers are wise they will take pause as calamity prophets and accept the lesson so clearly taught by the people. The many will consent to be taxes for the benefit of American labor to the exact extent of attaining "the greatest good for the greatest number," but just there they will call a halt. They will not consent that the many shall be taxed for the benefit of a favored few. Not only will the Cleveland administration refuse assent to such a policy, but no party power of the future, whether Democratic or Republican, will ever assent to it again. It is dead—dead beyond the reach of the ressurrection trump. The late election was a revolution, and revolutions take no step backwards.—Times.

For instance, Mrs. Chas. Rogers, of Bay City, Mich., accidentally spilled scalding water over her little boy. She promptly applied De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve, giving instant relief. It's a wonderfully good salve for burns, bruises, sores, and a sure cure for piles. W. S. Rishton, Druggist.

Not Biela's Comet.

PROFESSOR BOSS SAYS THE WANDERER IS NOT APPROACHING THE EARTH.

According to Professor Lewis Boss, the widely-known astronomer in charge of the Dudley Observatory, Albany the public has fallen into serious error in its notion about the comet which is now the popular theme of speculation. Professor Boss has been looking at it very intently for several nights past and has figured out somewhat startling deductions from the data thus secured.

The professor said that the comet is not Biela's or even a part of Biela's. According to Professor Boss it traveled for a short time in the path which Biela's name sake used to disport itself, but it has now stopped that practice. The comet, he says, is distant from the earth two hundred and fifty million miles, instead of eleven million miles, as is popularly supposed. The professor says that this estimate is not exact and that he will have to verify it further. But for all practical purposes he thinks it will answer

The comet is not approaching the earth, either directly or indirectly. On the contrary, it is traveling almost directly away from the earth. This the professor asserts is proven beyond a doubt. In view of these conclusions the professor adds that there will not be any collision with the earth nor any meteoric displays, nor in fact any celestial exhibition of any sort.

OFFICE SEEKERS MUST WAIT.

PRESIDENT-ELECT CLEVELAND WILL NOT CONSIDER APPLICATIONS FOR PLACES UNTIL AFTER HIS INAUGURATION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—President-elect Cleveland left town to-day in search of much needed rest. Since election he has been fairly overrun with callers, and the volume of his correspondence has been something enormous.

A reporter called upon Mr. Cleveland this morning. The president-elect's appearance indicated to some extent that fatigue consequent upon his labors and the confinement to which he has been subjected. In speaking of the absolute necessity of relief from the annoyance and exactions which are his daily lot at home he said:

"I have been amazed and exceedingly gratified by the thousands of letters of congratulations which I have received since election from the American people of every quarter of the land. It has been, however, utterly impossible for me to read even the letters of that description which I have received, with other interruptions that have thus far seemed unavoidable.

WHAT CLEVELAND'S CALLERS DID.

"I fully appreciate, however, the good will and friendliness which these indicate, and shall not omit, as time allows to read every one of them. These good friends, of course, will not expect any replies to their communications, for that would be utterly out of the question, and the most that I can do is to say through the press that I am not unmindful of their kindness.

"Many of the callers whom I have been obliged to receive would not, I think, encroach upon my time if they had given the matter a moment's reflection. Those who have called upon me to talk about offices, it seems to me, have been a little inconsiderate and certainly unnecessarily premature. I desire to give as much publicity as possible to the statement that I do not propose to consider applications for office prior to my inauguration, and I shall avoid all interviews on that subject.

WHEN OFFICES WILL BE GIVEN OUT.

"Those who under any pretense gain an opportunity to present their applications orally, and those who burden me at this time with written applications, cannot possibly do anything which would so interfere with their chances of success. Written applications will be so little regarded that I doubt if they ever see the files in Washington, for there is no reason or decency in my being overwhelmed with such matters at this time."

Upon being asked how long he intended to be away on his vacation, Mr. Cleveland replied: "As to that I am not certain; it will depend upon various conditions. I expect, however, to be absent about two weeks, and when I return, unless I am somewhat relieved from the necessary demands upon my time to which I have been subjected here thus far, I shall shut up my house in the city and find some more quiet place to spend the winter. Certainly between now and the 4th of March I ought to have some time to devote to other matters than receiving callers and considering subjects which should be postponed."

Quietly, almost secretly, Mr. Cleveland left New York to-night in the Norfolk express over the Pennsylvania railroad for the South. He traveled in a special car, and until he reached Philadelphia his only companion was Charles Jefferson, son of Joseph Jefferson, the comedian. When the train reached here, Mr. Cleveland's car was boarded by L. Clark Davis, editor of the Philadelphia Ledger, who with Mr. Jefferson, will be Mr. Clevelend's only companion during his holiday.

Mr. Davis had his hunting traps with him and although he declined to say where the party was bound for he did say that they would probably put in the greater portion of the time shooting. When the train with Mr. Cleveland's car attached pulled into Broad street station, several newspaper men climbed aboard and gave their cards to the colored porter with the request that they be given to Mr. Cleveland. In a moment the porter returned with the cards in his hands. He handed them to the owners with the remark: "He says he can't read writin". During the short time the train remained in the station the curtains of the car remained down. At 11.16 the train started on its journey south for Cape Charles.

Probing the Sunbury Murder Mystery.

SHAMOKIN, Nov. 18.—Before the coroner's jury last night, Daniel Raup swore he saw Graeff, the ex-constable who was shot last week at Enterprise, leave the Lehigh station for the mining hamlet, and later on the night watchman at Corbin colliery heard two pistol shots near the point where Graeff's body was found. The police are now sure that he was murdered for money in an Enterprise house, but that friends of Yocobonus, the Pole, whom he shot three years ago, avenged his death.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21, 1892.

Mr. Harrison has borne his defeat in such a manly way that he has won the respect and admiration of even the staunchest democrats. The members of his Cabinet have had little to say, although it was well known that more than one of them might have said some very interesting things had they been so disposed. This being the situation, a sensation was created in high republican circles when jovial Secretary Rusk opened his ammunition box and fired a red hot shot straight at the head of the man who has been privately charged by Mr. Harrison's close personal friends with having exerted his powerful influence in the republican party to lessen the vote for Mr. Harrison. Although Secretary Rusk called no name he made it as plain as though he had spoken through the most powerful trumpet ever made, that in his opinion James G. Blaine, the ex-head of the Harrison Cabinet was the traitor upon whose head the wrath of the republican party should be poured.

It is learned from trustworthy sources that Mr. Harrison was averse to such a statement being made by any member of his Cabinet, not because he believed it untrue, but because he thought it undignified and unnecessary; bnt Secretary Rusk who had it in for Blaine, whom he once admired so much that he named his son after him, ever since last summer when Blaine tried to deprive him of the credit for restoring the European privileges of the American hog, and later to use him to defeat Mr. Harrison's renomination; in his own language "tried to make a traitor of me." He might have held in until he was out of office, but for his accidental discovery of indisputable evidence that Mr. Blaine had much to do with the loss of his own state, which he worked so hard to keep in the republican column. That settled it; he had to have his say, and it was in pretty close accord with what many members of his party think without saying.

The question of pensions is one of the most important that the coming administration and Congress will have to deal with; it directly affects every man, woman and child in the United States It is now certain that there will be a deficiency of $35,000,000 for the current fiscal year, which must be appropriated at this session of Congress, and those who ought to know estimate the amount that will be required for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1893, which must also be appropriated at this session, as somewhere in the neighborhood of $200,000,000. It is difficult for human intellect to comprehend the immensity of the pile of money represented by those figures. It represents more than $3, for each inhabitant of the country, and Secretary Foster of the Treasury predicts that before the close of Cleveland's administration it will take $250,000,000 a year to pay the pensions—more than all the other expenses of the country added together. It is scarcely to be wondered at that old idea, championed in the House some years ago by Hon. Wm. R. Morrison of Illinois, of raising the money to pay pensions by imposing an income tax, should be revived at this time. If pension expenditures are to keep growing some extraordinary method of raising the money will certainly have to be restored to.

There is so much rivalry among Washington democrats to be members of the citizens committee which will make the arrangement for the most largely attended inauguration the country has ever had that it has resulted in a more or less bitter wrangle for its control, between the National committeeman for the District of Columbia, who took the matter in his own hands and forwarded the name of gentlemen to be members of the committee to chairman Harrity for his approval, and the central democratic committee, which believes that it should have selected the inaugural committee. Full details of the claims of both sides have been forwarded to chairman Harrity and his decisions will be cheerfully accepted by all parties.

"Teddy" Roosevelt, the President of one of the greatest American humbugs, the Civil Service Commission, has forgotten all about the numerous prosecutions he was going to make for violation of the law by various individuals, in soliciting campaign contributions from federal employes, previous to election, and is now lying awake nights to study up schemes to keep the democrats out of the patronage to which they should be entitled after the fourth of March next, by extending the Civil Service to branches of the Government to which it never would have been extended had Harrison been re-elected. Mr. Harrison has so far refused to endorse this scheme to keep republicans in office under a democratic administration by issuing the necessary order to carry it into effect, but he may be worried into it yet. The people of this country have voted aganst perpetual office holding, and a democratic Congress might take a notion to let this old humbug die for the want of an appropriation. The tears would be few, and they wouldn't be from democratic eyes.

Colorless, Emaciated, Helpless

A Complete Cure by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

This is from Mr. D. M. Jordan, a retired farmer, and one of the most respected citizens of Otsego Co., N. Y.

"Fourteen years ago I had an attack of the gravel, and have since been troubled with my

Liver and Kidneys

gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat 5 times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I feel well and am well. All who know me marvel to see me so well." D. M. JORDAN.

THEY'RE ALL TALKING OF IT.

A Reporter investigates several public recommendations, and finds

EVERY WORD TRUE.

More Words of Praise spoken than Published.

The strong letters of recommendation and experiences which have so frequently appeared in the various daily papers, excited the curiosity of the Editor of the Albany Argus Determined to know as to the genuineness of the published documents, placed the matter in the hands of one of their reporters, Mr. Robert A. Male, the veteran foreman of VanSlyke & Horton's Tobacco Factory, on Broadway, Albany, N. Y., was first called upon, and shown the following:

"About ten years ago I had a great deal of trouble with stone in the bladder, and I had to submit to an operation. But the old trouble reappeared and I feared that another operation would be necessary. A friend suggested that I try Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., after using the medicine a short while, I found it was doing me good. I continued its use and am happy to say it entirely cured me. I take it whenever I feel a little out of sorts, and it always does me good. But for kidney or urinary trouble of any kind I am a proof of its curative powers.

Mr. Male said every word was true and and he would not be without that valuable preparation.

Mr. F. C. Brink, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., whose famous experience published, as "A Scrap of Paper." Picking a scrap of paper up in the street one day, found it contained Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy advertisement, and as it particularly hit his case, bought the medicine and found the help he had been praying for.

Mr. F. C. Brink.

In answer as to the truth of the article, Mr. Brink said he was always pleased to say a good word for Favorite Remedy, and referred the writer to the following letter lately published in the Poughkeepsie Eagle.

Gentlemen:—Receiving many letters from all over the country, asking as to the truth of an advertisement printed in your paper, giving my experience with Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, I wish to say it was a pleasure to give that recommendation to Dr. Kennedy, and when I said I was cured of catarrh of the bladder and chronic kidney disease, I wrote simply the truth.

For years before I used this valuable medicine, I suffered from urinary troubles, pain in my back and a nervous, sleepless condition, yet before I had taken the fourth bottle I was cured, sound and well. I have replied to these letters and am willing to do similar service to those afflicted. But I make this public statement hoping it may reach the eye of the sufferer, and save me personal correspondence, for at my age letter writing is note easy.

Yours truly,
24 Thompson Street. F. C. BRINK.

Homestead Strike Declared Off.

After a struggle of nearly five months, which for bitterness has probably never been equaled in this country the great strike at Carnegie's Homestead Steel Works has been declared off.

This action was taken at a meeting of the lodges of the Amalgamated Association at Homestead last Sunday, the vote standing 101 in favor of declaring the strike off and 91 against it. The officials addressed the members, and in plain words told them the strike was lost and advised them to take steps to better their condition.

The members met with considerable opposition, but when the vote was taken it showed a majority of ten in favor of declaring the strike off. Those who were in favor of calling the strike off were jubilant, while those who were against it were badly put out. Most of the latter were men who were obstinate, and many of them were men who had either applied for positions in the mill and had been turned down or felt sure that their names were on the company's black list and could not get positions.

HISTORY OF THE STRIKE.

On June 30, 1892, the lock-out went into effect owing to the inability of the officials of the Amalgamated Association to arrive at an amicable basis for the new scale of wages due to go into effect on July 1. At this time there were employed in the homestead mills nearly 4,000 men. Of this vast army of workmen the Carnegie official averred that the wages of only 182 men would be adversely affected by the new scale of wages proposed by the firm. The workmen declared that it was not so much the reduction of the wages of a few men as it was the principles of the Amalgated Association that were at stake. At that time the Carnegie Company was employing union men at all of its big iron and steel plants with the exception of the Edgar Thomson plant at Braddock.

FRICK'S ULTIMATUM.

Chairman Frick, after numerous consultations with the representatives of the Amalgamated Association, found that a wage battle was inevitable, and with this conviction in his mind he gave his ultimatum, which immediately brought on the strike. The building of the fences, the laying of steam pipes, the stringing of electric barb wires around the plant and the general preparations for trouble so enraged the men that when on July 6 the two barges loaded with Pinkerton detectives attempted to make a landing the serious trouble ensued in which the loss of a score or more of lives, the maiming of as many more men, the burning of the barges and the calling out of the entire Guard of Pennsylvania are now matters of history.

For the first time since the civil war the complete Guard of Pennsylvania, numoering over 8,000 men, nearly all of whom responded, was called out. The order was called out. The order was issued by the Governor on Sunday evening, July 10, and by 9 o'clock the next morning the troops were on their way to Homestead. Until about the middle of October the Second and Third Brigades guarded the works, while the First Brigade was held at Mount Gretna for a few days. Since then the cost to the State for this protection has been officially estimated at about $625,000. The town was taken complete control of by the militia; but with the exception of a few cases of disorderly conduct no further trouble developed.

The cost put upon Allegheny county by the strike is fixed at $200,000, the bulk of which will be needed to pay for the Sheriff's deputies and the prosecution of the strikers now under way:

LOSS TO THE CARNEGIE COMPANY

The loss to the Carnegie Steel Company is variously estimated at from $1,000,000 to 2,500,000. This sum covers the direct loss sustained by incapacitating the Homestead plant and the canceling of the government contracts for armor plate, which it is believed, has been done, although the Carnegie officials decline to give the facts.

The losses by the strikers through sympathy of the men employed at the Lower and upper Union Mills, the Beaver Falls and the Duquesne Mills will easily swell the total loss to the company to $3,000,000.

The loss to the old employes has averaged $125,000 a month, making the total for five months $625,000. This loss is exclusive of the wages affected by the trouble at the other Carnegie plants.

The strike at the Beaver Falls Mills was not declared off until Saturday and the losses to the men employed at those works were severe.

So far but a few of the Homestead men have been reinstated, but it is but a question of a short time until all black sheep are taken back. Assistant Superintendent Woods, of the Carnegie Steel Company, says about 900 of the old men will be re-employed.

The winds from the North blows sharp and keen, and bad effects of colds are seen. One Minute Cough Cure so safe and sure, will quickly perform a wondrous cure. W. S. Rishton, Druggist. 10-14-1y

AN ATTRACTIVE SUBJECT.

A few days ago several gentlemen were standing in front of the Post Office engaged in general discourse, when the subject of turkeys and chickens for Thanksgiving dinner happened to arise. Just then another man residing not many miles from Bloomsburg, came along, and as he heard the words "stewed chicken" he stopped and listened. Seeing that his action had attracted attention he smiled pleasantly, and said: "Excuse me, gentlemen, but on hearing what you were talking about, I couldn't help but stop. You may think this queer but—I am a clergyman." And with a laugh in which all joined, he passed on.

LOVE'S VICTORY.

When I am dead, dear love, if thou should'st feel
Thy loneliness too hard a load to bear,
And that another could thy wound anneal
With gentle tenderness and loving care,
My spirit hovering near thee would not chide,
E'en should'st thou smile on a beloved bride—
When I am dead!

I only ask she be not like to me—
As I was dark, let her be fresh and fair;
Instead of brown locks waving wild and free,
Close to her head coil round the golden hair;
And may she tower stately, grand and tall;
I shall not mind that I was frail and small—
When I am dead!

So that she come not nestling to thy side,
Nor climb up to the level of thy heart,
And lavish kisses without stint or pride,
Or beg sweep pity for some pain or smart,
As I was wont—nor Love's expression crave
To be, as I, Love's gladly fettered slave—
When I am dead!

Nay, love her as thou wilt, and as she will,
With fullest meed, and with a conscience clear,
E'en though thy memory hold my memory still,
In quiet corner garnered, close and dear.
If a true heart should give thee of its best,
As I did once, I shall the happier rest—
When I am dead!

—Anne Patchett Martin in Temple Bar.

Drinking from the Loving Cup.

Every prosperous club has its loving cup, but how many of the guests who see it gracing the banquet know its origin or the graceful ceremonial which should be observed in drinking from it? The cup should have two handles and a cover, and is handed to the principal guest as the toasts begin. The guest takes it by both handles, and standing turns to the person nearest, who also stands, and both bow. Then, while the second guest removes the lid, the first one drinks, and with another bow passes the cup to his neighbor, who replaces the lid and presents it in turn to the next guest, and so the ceremony is repeated.

In the old days of chivalry and of treachery, as a man while drinking from the two handled cup was practically defenseless, his companion was required to remove the cover with his sword hand that he might not take advantage of the other. It is a very pretty ceremony when gracefully performed.—New York Sun.

In Hawarden Castle.

The Rev. Henry Drew was an amiable and congenial guide to the many objects of engrossing interest in Hawarden castle. Before leaving the drawing room I had feasted my eyes on many relics and souvenirs of the life still in such wonderful preservation. The room is a large lightsome one, looking on to the grounds. Every nook and corner of it has some token of love or admiration from worshipers of the great man who inhabits this retreat. These were from all quarters—India, Italy, Ireland, America and England.

Here is a huge embossed silver cylinder, containing tapestry from India, and there lying alongside a great book of photographs stamped "Roma," is an immense beautifully bound album containing nothing but the names of Italian students. The bright face of Lord Rosebery looks out on you from a large silver frame surmounted with the letter "R," while the ascetic countenance of John Morley is not absent.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Vampires in Guiana.

When the West Indies were first discovered hogs were put on some of the islands; these in time increased wonderfully, so as to become vast herds, affording a supply of fresh meat to the mariner sick of the scurvy. In Guiana, however, these animals never became common, but on the contrary required the greatest of care to preserve them from the vampires. Domestic animals, like man, sleep at night, and here the bats have the advantage of them, while the wild quadrupeds of the forest range and feed at the same time as their sanguinary enemy. Hence it has followed that peccaries roam securely and are quite free from the vampires, while their domesticated cousins must be housed and caged.—Longman's Magazine.

Had Heard of Bishop Brooks.

The Result of a Dream.

Before Watts, the discoverer of the present mode of making shot, had his notable dream, induced by overindulgence in stimulants, the manufacture in question was a slow, laborious and consequently costly process. Great bars of lead had to be pounded into sheets of a thickness nearly equal to the diameter of the shots desired. These sheets had then to be cut into little cubes, placed in a revolving barrel, and there rolled until, by the constant friction, the edges wore off from the little cubes and they became spheroids.

Watts had often racked his brain trying to discover some better and less costly scheme, but in vain. Finally, after spending an evening with some boon companions at an alehouse, he went home, went to bed and soon fell asleep. His slumbers, however, were disturbed by unwelcome dreams, in one of which he was out with "the boys," and as they were stumbling home it began to rain shot—beautiful globules of polished, shining lead—in such numbers that he and his companions had to seek shelter.

In the morning Watts remembered his curious dream and it obtruded itself on his mind all day. He began to wonder what shape molten lead would assume in falling through the air, and finally, to set his mind at rest, he ascended to the top of the steeple of the church of St. Mary at Radcliffe and dropped slowly and regularly a ladleful of molten lead into the moat below. Descending, he took from the bottom of the shallow pool several handfuls of the most perfect shot he had ever seen. Watt's fortune was made, for from this exploit emanated the idea of the shot tower, which ever since has been the only means employed in the manufacture of the little missiles so important in war and sport.—Boston Commonwealth.

A Sign from Heaven.

"A queer story was related to me many years ago by Rev. William Simpson, then one of the leading lights of the Methodist church in eastern Iowa and western Illinois," said Harvey Goodenough, a Hawkeye pioneer, at the Laclede. "While the Mormons were carrying things with a high hand in western Illinois they converted a young woman, a member of Elder Simpson's flock. A few months spent at Nauvoo sufficed to disenchant her, and she returned home a confirmed skeptic. The church people labored with her long and faithfully, but without overcoming her unbelief. Before her bedroom window stood a large oak tree. She announced that she was going to pray the Lord for a sign—that she would ask him if he really had an existence to manifest it by causing the great oak tree to wither, as Christ is said to have blasted the unfruitful fig tree. She was to prefer her request for a 'sign' upon which to ground her faith at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

"Her resolution at once became the talk of the town, and many visited the tree and carefully examined it. It was perfectly sound, full of sap and covered with a profusion of bright green leaves. At sunset every leaf was as brown and withered as in the depths of winter. The elder stated that with a party of men he cut the tree down and dug up the stump, and that it was dead from the topmast branch to the smallest root. The young woman's prayer had been answered. She at once re-entered the church and devoted her life to missionary work, spending several years in China and Japan."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Platinum Mines of Russia.

The platinum beds of the Ural mountains are the only ones in the world in which this metal is found in grains. Platinum is found in Brazil and in the Cordilleras in the hard serpentine rocks, but never in the form of grains. The platinum beds of the Ural mountains are found in various districts—in the north at Besserski, in the government of Perm, in the district of Knotourski and in the state properties of Goroblagodatski, where sixty-six mining concessions have been granted. All the beds of the northern region are situated in the basin of the river Touri, in that of the tributary stream of Taghil and in other tributaries higher up.

On the western declivity of the Ural mountains there is another platinum bed near the river Outka, a tributary of the Tchoussova, and the basins of the higher tributaries of the Outka, near the Ural river. The platinum found in these places is in the form of grains, in sand frequently containing gold. The weight of these grains is from seventeen to twenty-one grams to every 1,640 kilograms of sand.—Exchange.

The Mixed Race of India.

Eurasia has no boundaries. It lies, a varying social fact, all over India, thick in the great cities, thickest in Calcutta, where the conditions of climate and bread winning are most suitable, and where, moreover, Eurasian charities are most numerous. Wherever Europeans have come and gone these people have sprung up in weedy testimony of them—these people who do not go, who have received somewhat in the feeble inheritance of their blood that makes it possible for them to live and die in India. Nothing will ever exterminate Eurasia; it clings to the sun and the soil, and is marvelously propagative within its borders.—Sara J. Duncan in Popular Science Monthly.

It Was Not Slang.

A contentious church member in a western town recently attempted to have his pastor disciplined for using the slang phrase "not in it" in the pulpit, but the bottom dropped out of his charge when the clergyman produced the manuscript of his sermon and read this sentence from it, "In a word, my Christian hearers, the ark was a miniature world; there was no form of life that was not in it."—New York Tribune.

The Comet's Approach.

MUCH SPECULATION AS TO WHETHER IT WILL BRUSH THE EARTH.

Two men running for a hole in the fence through which only one can pass at a time would illustrate the race now going on between the earth and the approaching comet.

If both are on time next Sunday and if the comet is Biela's comet, as now seems to be generally believed, then the comet will pass across the spot where the courses meet eight hours ahead of the earth. It is not yet known, however, whether or not the comet is on time.

If it is Biela's comet there is every reason to believe that it is not on time, because it never yet has met the expectations of astronomers and is the most eccentric and unreliable wanderer of the heavens, seeming to follow a plan of its own rather than running in a track which scientists have laid down for it.

It has been shown how this comet came up one time only to explode in the heavens; how another year it smilingly showed its head above the horizon a whole day in advance of the time it was expected; and, then, how it finally disappeared in a mysterious manner, leaving nothing but a shower of meteors and a gaseous odor behind.

If the record of Biela's comet was not such an uncertain one, there would not be the slightest doubt that it is that fiery monster which is now heading this way. Its periodicity has arrived; its time is up. November 27, 1892, is the date when it ought to be nearest the earth. But for several years astronomers had been complacently regarding it as "lost," it now turns up to worry them.

As regards a possible collision, no astronomer has yet been found who will say it is impossible. On the contrary, nearly all those who have been observing the comet during the past week have been making approximate estimates as to the length of time which will divide the two bodies. Time, not distance, is the fact to take in consideration in such a matter, for, Biela's comet only a million miles away, would, it is said, cause almost as much or as little damage as if it squarely swept the earth with its tail.

Beila's comet was thought by the eminent astronomer Klinkerfues to have struck the earth in 1872, and he telegraphed to that effect to Professor Pogson at Madras. Much as Professor Klinkerfues was rediculed for this action when the mistake was subsequently discovered, he showed a very good scientific reason for his belief, pointing to the fact that the comet had been coming closer and closer to the earth for many years.

The extraordinary atmospheric manifestations which occured in that year are believed by many scientists to have resulted from the bursting of one of the parts of the comet. In every instance, however, when Biela's comet has approached the earth its appearance has been accompanied by immense numbers of falling stars, and there is every reason to believe that many meteors will be seen this week.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

How the Necessary Money Is Raised and Handled for Carrying Elections.

During a political campaign the first and in most cases the chief source of revenue is the assessment of candidates. The amount of these assessments varies in different localities and under different circumstances. A common assessment in Illinois, for example, in districts that are not considered especially doubtful in ordinary elections, is 5 per cent. of the annual salary, and it is expected that all candidates, unless there is some special reason for exception, will pay this assessment. However, it not infrequently happens that the most valuable candidate for the party is a poor man, who is unable to pay the regular assessment. In that case, the committee, taking all the circumstances into account, ask him to pay what seems reasonable, or he may be even entirely exempted from assessment, as in the case of a crippled candidate for county recorder in Indiana in 1890. A wealthy candidate, who can well afford to pay more, is sometimes assessed a lump sum without any especial reference to the salary that he is to receive if elected.

In national elections local county committees expect to receive money also from the national committee, usually through the hands of the state committee. In the campaign of 1888 the Republican committee in one county of Indiana received $800 from the state committee, which they supposed, as a matter of course, came from the national committee.

In the campaign of 1880, in that same state, the two leading county managers of one of the parties went to Indianapolis and met there a representative from the national committee. They went to his room in the hotel to talk with him regarding funds. When he asked their needs it was replied that they did not come to beg money from the national committee, but that their county stood ready to match dollar for dollar whatever sum he was willing to give them. "You're the kind of men I have been wanting to see," replied the gratified representative from New York. "You can have as much money as you want; help yourselves." He took down two valises, and threw them open, showing them packed full of bills. One of the most astute of New York political managers is of the opinion that while they doubtless took what they needed they failed to keep their promise to match the sum "dollar for dollar" from their own county; but they did keep their word.

Another source of revenue, and one that is much larger than we should expect, if we did not consider the great enthusiasm that a close campaign arouses, is voluntary contributions. I am not speaking here of the large sums that are raised by national committees from wealthy men, especially from those who feel that they have much at stake in national legislation, but the amount that is contributed to county and city committees in local campaigns. In the campaign of 1888, in the same county that received $800 from the national committee, one little city of 4,000 inhabitants raised $1,200 a day or two before the election, after the assessments had been collected. The money was given voluntarily by enthusiastic men. In that campaign, in that county, some $7,000 was spent by one party alone.—Professor Jenks in Century.

An Apple Tree's Roots.

For the purpose of erecting a suitable monument in honor of Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island, his private burying ground was searched for himself and wife. It was found that everything had passed into oblivion. The shape of the coffins could be traced only by the carbonaceous matter. The rusted hinges and nails and a round wooden knot remained in one grave, while a single knot of braided hair was found in the other.

Near the graves stood an apple tree, from which fruit had been gathered each year and eaten. This had sent down two main roots into the very presence of the coffined dead. The larger root, pushing its way to the precise spot occupied by the skull of Roger Williams, had made a turn as if passing around it, and followed the direction of the backbone to the hips. Here it divided into two branches, sending one along each leg to the heel, where both turned upward toward the toes. One of these roots formed a slight crook at the knees, which made the whole bear a striking resemblance to the human form. —New York World.

Making Ghost Photographs.

Photographers, and especially amateurs, have given much attention to the production of spirit photographs, and many suggestions have been made as to the best mode of securing effective pictures. A prominent operator states that he has obtained excellent results by setting up the camera and focus in the ordinary way on a person wrapped in a sheet or other suitable covering and placing the clothed spirits lightly out of focus against a dark background, giving a short exposure and then capping the lens. If the real sitter is then placed in the center of the focusing screen and given an ordinary exposure a materialized angel will be visible on the development of the photo.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Increase of Voting Population.

Between 1880 and 1890 the eligible voting population in the United States increased 32 per cent. The ratio of growth was smallest in Maine and Vermont, and largest in Nebraska, Minnesota, Oregon, Florida, Kansas and the new states. Florida increased more largely than any one of the southern states, and New Jersey more largely than any of the northern states east of the Mississippi.—New York Sun.

The German Birth Rate.

It is asserted that the proportionate number of births in Russia is nearly double that of France, while the German population increases faster than that of any other country.—Chambers' Journal.

The Formation of Heat.

M. Lagrange has communicated to the Belgian academy a paper on the formation of bodies in the universe. In this paper he expresses the opinion that, before any expenditure of work, the quantity of heat of the universe was nil, that the temperature was gradually raised above absolute zero at the expense of work done by attraction, and hence the formation of solid bodies must have preceded that of liquids and gases; that, through the gradual condensation of matter and consequent enormous development of heat, the earth would attain, at least in its parts near the surface, the state of fluidity necessary to its form and geological characters; then, as the temperature gradually rose with gradual agglomeration of matter, a very dense atmosphere would form, with pressure diminishing outward, and in a more advanced phase, the temperature of this, after reaching a maximum, would gradually diminish, causing liquefaction or solidification of certain matters at first vaporous, while other solid bodies might remain suspended in the atmosphere.

Briefly, M. Lagrange, in elucidation of the basis of his original and remarkable theory, as thus set forth, declares that space is occupied by two substances, namely: One, attractive, which is matter properly so called, or material atoms; the other, repulsive, which occupies the interatomic space, and from which results between any two atoms a variable repulsion exercised at the surface of the latter.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Yawning Witnesses.

A few evenings ago half a dozen men were sitting out in front of the Capital hotel discussing various topics, when Judge Yost, of the supreme court, in telling an anecdote of a trial, remarked that the witness yawned and he knew he was lying.

"How did you know?" was asked.

"Well, sir, I have seen witnesses lie and not yawn, but I never knew one to yawn that he was not telling a lie."

Judge Sims, the member of the legislature from Trigg, remarked, "Yes, I always know a witness is lying when he yawns."

Senator Dave Smith said, "It is almost invariably the case."

Judge Wall, the senator from Mason, came up and corroborated the statements of the others, and just then Judge Brent, of the superior court, joined the group. "When a witness yawns he is telling a lie, and he knows it."

Several other lawyers were appealed to, and all bore out the statements made. None, however, could explain the phenomenon. Judge Yost was the only one who had a theory, and that was that when a fellow was swearing to a lie he could not face the music, and his embarrassment found expression in yawns. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Quinine by Proxy.

Not long since, said the drummer, I was down in one of the ague districts of Indiana, and in front of my customer's store I saw a native sitting on the horse block. He seemed to be suffering and I went to him.

"What's the matter?" I inquired.

"Nothin much, mister," he replied with a wan smile. "I'm jest a settin here in the sun shakin."

"Got the chills?"

"That's what, mister."

"Why don't you take something for them?"

"I do, mister. That is, Sary does. She takes all the quinine for the family. Sary's my wife."

That was a new form of woman's devotion, and I was somewhat surprised at its discovery.

"Thunderation, man," I exclaimed, "that won't help you any."

"I guess you're mistaken, mister," he said, with stolid confidence. "I've had the chills fer twenty-five years an they ain't killed me yit."—Detroit Free Press.

Caste Broken Down by Street Cars.

Street cars in Bombay are mostly of American manufacture, and the promoters of the street car lines are Americans. When it was proposed, not many years ago, to start such lines Europeans prophesied their failure upon the ground that such common public conveyances could not be profitable in a caste ruled community. It was believed that the high caste man, who will not eat or drink from the vessel used by a low caste man, would refuse to ride in a public conveyance beside his humble brother.

In spite of these doleful prophecies the railways were built and equipped, and lo! the high caste man complacently pays his fare and rides untroubled by the side of any sort of man. The cheapness and convenience of the street cars were too much for even the hard and fast rules of caste.—Chicago Tribune.

A Young Child Wife.

The conversation had drifted to early marriages, and Allan Thompson, of Dubuque, said: "The youngest wife I ever knew lived at Fairview, Ia. Her maiden name was Ella Hotchkiss, and at the age of eleven she was married to a youth of eighteen, whose name I cannot now recall. I frequently saw her after her marriage playing with other children about the village, making mud pies, etc. About a year after the marriage a little daughter—a tiny thing weighing but three pounds—was born to the youthful couple. The ladies of the neighborhood then persuaded the child wife to don long dresses and quit jumping the rope in the street."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Military Doubt.

"Did you see a boy about my size round the corner?" a boy inquired of an elderly gentleman who was passing.

"Yes, I believe I did," said the man.

"Did he look ugly?"

"I didn't notice."

"Did he look scared?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"Why, I heard he was round there, and I don't know whether he wants to lick me, or whether he's afraid I'm going to lick him. Wish I did!"—Exchange.

If You Saw
Your Own Wood

and saw enough of it, your digestive organs may perhaps be equal, ostrich like, to any task you impose—even to the digestion of lard-cooked food.

If however, like thousands of other people, you have learned that you must "draw the line at lard," this is to remind you that there is a clean, delicate and healthful vegetable substitute, called which if used in place of lard, permits you to eat pies, pastry, patties and such "good things" without fear of dyspeptic consequences.

There's abundant proof, but none so convincing and so pleasant as a trial for yourself. We invite it. For sale everywhere.

Enterprising Young Man: True & Co. instructed and started me. I worked steadily and made money faster than I expected to. I became able to buy an island and build a small summer hotel. If I don't succeed at that, I will go to work again at the business in which I made my money. True & Co.: Shall we instruct and start you, reader? If we do, and if you work industriously, you will in due time be able to buy an island and build a hotel, if you wish to. Money can be earned at our new line of work, rapidly and honorably, by those of either sex, young or old, and in each one's locality, wherever they live. Any one can do the work. Easy to learn. We furnish everything. No risk. You can devote your spare moments, or all your time to the work. This entirely new lead brings wonderful success to every worker. Beginners are earning from $25 to $50 per week and upwards, and more after a little experience. We can furnish you the employment—we teach you FREE. This is an age of marvelous things, and here is another great, useful, wealth giving wonder. Great gains will reward every industrious worker. Wherever you are, and whatever you are doing, you want to know about this wonderful work at once. Delay means much money lost to you. No space to explain here, but if you will write to us, we will make all plain to you FREE. Address, TRUE & CO., Box 400, Augusta, Maine.

MONEY

Wisely invested will soon double itself, and there are often as many elements of safety surrounding a good paying investment as one that pays small dividends. The earning capacity of every investment is the foundation of dividends. The Athinic Home Furnishing CO., of Maine, Organized in 1887, has paid its stockholders 9 semi-annual dividends of 5 per cent. each (10 per cent. a year) and is earning a handsome surplus besides. It is a buy and sell business and a safe investment for all classes. The authorized capital is $1,000,000, of which $570,000 has been paid in. To further increase the business, $80,000 of the Treasury Stock is offered until March 15th, at par, $10 per share. Price of stock will be advanced February 18th to take effect on above date. For full particulars address the company, Box 1218, Boston, Mass or Portland, Me.

Some one has said that a bargain is an article sold under its real value. Some advertisers are not believers in this theory or are as economical of the truth as they are with their bargains.

But "an honest tale speeds best being plainly told." This is our purpose in offering Wall paper bargains. They are bargains because they are as we represent them, full length, full weight, bona-fide goods.

We know one instance of a bargain in wall paper which after it was on the walls lead pencil marks showed through. Whose was the bargain?

Come and see us before buying elsewhere.

A. B. CATHCART, P. M.

The People's Cyclopædia represented by T. B. Miller of Wilkes Barre, Pa., is still in the lead. It is now published in four volumes. Three times as many of them were sold during the last three years as all others combined, and he informs us that he has taken more orders than any agent on the road. Prof. Coughlin City Superintendent of Schools of Wilkes Barre, Pa., says he would like to see it in the hands of every teacher.

Any person desiring to procure a Cyclopædia of any kind would find it to his or her advantage to correspond with him. His post office address is 19 North Washington street, Wilkes Barre, Pa.

The "Two Old Cronies" company which played two nights in the Opera House last week, was one of the best of the kind that ever came here. It was a roaring farce from beginning to end, and all the specialties were first class. Harrigan, the tramp, was immense.

Ira Roadarmel died at Centralia last Saturday from injuries received in the mines. He was a brother of Isaac Roadarmel of this town, and of John Roadarmel of Montour township.

An orchestra of twelve pieces is now in practice and will be heard in public ere long.

ENVELOPES.

A large stock of envelopes can be seen at this office. We sell them with business cards or whatever is wanted, printed on them, at prices ranging from $1.50 to $4.00 per 1000. A good envelope, white or buff for $2.25. All kinds of printing as good as the best, and as cheap as the cheapest. tf

DRUNKENNESS, or the LIQUOR HABIT, Cured at Home in Ten Days by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never fails. The system once impregnated with the specific it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed. 48 page book of particulars free. What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd. cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

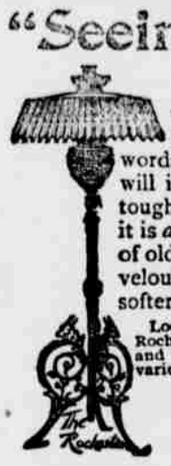
"Seeing is Believing."



And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

Look for this stamp—THE ROCHESTER. If the lamp dealer has'n't the genuine Rochester, and the style you want, send to us for our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 2,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.
